what starts and stops tail growth holds open the promise of solutions to some of the most heartbreaking human birth defects.

Horner and New York Times science desk editor James Gorman take you out into the field, digging for huge fossils in the Montana sun, and into the cutting-edge biology labs that are creating this new biological age. This is a story about dinosaurs, but it's also about the transformation in our understanding of life on earth that the latest biological research into evolution is giving us.

JACK HORNER is Regent's Professor of Paleontology at Montana State University and curator of paleontology at the Museum of the Rockies. The recipient of a MacArthur "Genius" award, he is the author of several dinosaur books, including Digging Dinosaurs, and has served as scientific advisor in the making of various documentaries as well as all three feature films of Jurassic Park. Horner does field work in Montana and Mongolia. He lives in Bozeman, Montana.

JAMES GORMAN is deputy science editor of The New York Times and editor of its Science Times section. He lives near New York City.

SURVIVALS OF SPANISH CRAFTS IN NEW MEXICO

by
Richard E. Ahlborn
Associate Curator
Division of Cultural History
Smithsonian Institution

Spanish crafts of New Mexico survive today as fragments of an earlier and more vital culture. The traditional materials, methods and motifs employed by modern craftsmen mark a trail that leads back to a cultural ecology that no longer exists. The unique combination of physical environment and psychological needs that once supported traditional Spanish crafts in New Mexico belongs to the historic past. Surviving elements of craft tradition can only suggest a portion of that rich heritage. It seems unlikely that tourist trade, professional promoters or even serious study can revive early crafts in New Mexico, or for that matter in any other part of the United States, in a manner that closely approaches their original completeness and integrity.

The Spanish crafts in New Mexico were, however, very much intact as recently as the late nineteenth century. Everyday household objects of wood and wool reflected the chronic poverty of Mexico's northern borderland after nearly three centuries of persistent Spanish settlement beginning in 1598.

Early in this long period, dreams of instant wealth gave way to settlements supported by farming and grazing. It is true, of course, that a governor might bring a few fine pieces of furniture and fabric with him. And we know that several silver objects graced his table, as well as that of the Lord's in the mission churches of the Franciscans. But the isolation and poverty of life in colonial New Mexico offered no appeal to members of the dozens of craft guilds in central Mexico.

Infrequent references or actual evidence of skilled craftsmen do occur: weaving by the Bazin brothers; the altar screen of 1761 in the military chapel at Santa Fe carved by an anonymous stone-cutter. Visits of such professional artisans seem to have been kept as short of those of church dignitaries.

One ecclesiastic visitor, Fray Atansio Domínguez recorded the objects and materials in each New Mexican church in 1776. From the variety of imported goods and locally supplied objects mentioned by Domínguez, one might conclude that the material needs of the territory were adequately maintained. This was hardly the case, even for the Church. After all, Domínguez was reporting the materials accumulated over eighty years of continuous missionary activity in northern New Mexico.

In fact, the triennial trade caravan from Mexico was totally insufficient to meet everyday needs. While royal funds financed meager assortments of church ornaments, and government salaries and personal income brought in goods for civil authorities, the average Spanish settler had to provide for his material needs by barter or craft skills.

Considering the remarkably rich heritage of peninsular crafts — many based on refined Moorish talents and later exported to Mexico—it may seem strange that traditional Spanish skills were not more developed in New Mexico. This region, however, was distant from the center of Spanish colonial culture, and poor in the materials and needs necessary to highly organized crafts. In New Mexico, even iron ore was scarce, and therefore smithing did not

This type of people like the artist El Greco are all from the same place as Hector had really come from and all got stranded prisoner to the people with the Autism, generation after generation, but a different group than Mr. Shinsuke's type. Stranded, they do most of the system's "magic" and do this "Armageddon Show" LURE that's been all over me for so long, because they are stranded prisoner to fulfilling the Autism-base's world-takeover desires, like it says in the book of the Revelation, 16:14-16, for instance.

The Resurrection of Jesus Christ is a central doctrine of Christianity. The artist El Greco painted a Resurrection scene of a serene Jesus rising above figures overcome by awe and fear.

UPWARD CLASS

Every big city newspaper in America, it seems, has taken note of the huge growth in the number of families headed by black women. It's an increase, as we know, that's been accompanied by a dangerous rise in poverty.

But there is another side of the story of what has been happening to black women in the past decade or so that has gone virtually unnoticed. At the other end of the spectrum, many have dramatically increased their educational level and moved out of low-wage occupations, pushing their average earnings upward.

Today is the 30th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision that ended the theory of separate-but-equal education, which will occasion much assessment of black advancement and stagnation. It's a good time to note this phenomenon of a broadened cadre of educated women. They can help their sisters still mired in the deep muck that threatens the economic stability of future generations and poses problems for the wider society.

Between 1970 and 1980, the median years of schooling for all black women rose from 10.2 to 12.1 years, the Census Bureau reported. By decade's end, education of black women lagged behind white women by only 0.4 years and white men by 0.5 years. They held a very slight lead—0.1 years—over black men. One in five had some college and a third completed high school.

Education has always been viewed within the black community as

The Rider on the White Horse

11I saw heaven standing open and there before me was a white horse, whose rider is called Faithful and True. With justice he judges and makes war. 12His eyes are like blazing fire, and on his head are many crowns. He has a name written on him that no one knows but he himself. 13He is dressed in a robe dipped in blood, and his name is the Word of

God. 14The armies of heaven were following him, riding on white horses and dressed in fine linen, white and clean. 15Out of his mouth comes a sharp sword with which to strike down the nations. "He will rule them with an iron scepter." He treads the winepress of the fury of the wrath of God Almighty. 16On his robe and on his thigh he has this name written:

KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS.

17And I saw an angel standing in the sun, who cried in a loud voice to all the birds flying in midair, "Come, gather together for the great supper of God, 18so that you may eat the flesh of kings, generals, and mighty men, of horses and their riders, and the flesh of all people, free and slave, small and great."

19Then I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies gathered together to make war against the rider on the horse and his army. 20But the beast was captured, and with him the false prophet who had performed the miraculous signs on his behalf. With these signs he had deluded those who had received the mark of the beast and worshiped his image. The two of them were thrown alive into the fiery lake of burning sulfur. 21The rest of them were killed with the sword that came out of the mouth of the rider on the horse, and all the birds gorged themselves on their flesh.

I'm the most invisibly-tortured person ever, the secret-underground using me to complete their Revelation-Armageddon threats and I know we're headed for TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION. NOTHING the system says is really true. It's holocaust-dangerous but anyone that gets a letter-writing helper to me can have 50% of future-profit off of the hundreds of letters and flyers I've distributed around here these past 9 years trying to explain that the system comes from people with Autism psychopathy so bad that it caused the solar system to cease evolving back when they'd turned to cannibalism after accidentally extinguishing the dinosaurs by egg-smashing. In 1794 they established on 10th St. N.W., as St. Patrick's Church and it looks like the Civil War was mostly for distraction while they set up their new oil industry out of Pennsylvania, growing people from stolen ovaries to be decomposed and processed into kerosene, gasoline, rocket fuel and now plastics. They have Neanderthals with wrongful-narcotics (brain) dependence all over me who probably keep anyone away from contacting me in the belief that they own me and this "show" off of me that attracts unware victims. I wrote to Oliver North because he used to know Reagan-saboteur Michael K. Deaver who'd hooked this building and "Armageddon-making Show" off of me together, but his Freedom Alliance group hasn't responded. I think it would be safest for all if they did try to reach me. It's probably an abuse of their non-profit status to just ignore my request. I'm hard to reach, with no telephone or email or friends, just walk from this D Street, N.W. side door to a CVS and the 9th and G MLK library every day.

The solar system broke when lost people accidentally extincted the dinosaurs by egg-smashing and mammoths by cliff-driving then turned to cannibalism and wars, space a crime scene as spirits had to try to help here.

Washington was undermined starting in 1794 as the "Autists" established at 10th and E Streets, N.W., as St. Patrick's Church, the Civil War mainly a distraction from their new oil business in Pennsylvania made from decomposed holocaust-victims and extra people they grew from purloined ovaries for that purpose.

They just dye the ova-eggs and invented the U.N.-cultures to go with the colors. Around 1988 Reagan-saboteur Michael K. Deaver, (d. 2007,) started preparing this 425 2nd Street, N.W., homeless shelter building for this "Armageddon-making Show" as holocaust-LURE that's been being done off of me since about 1964, me getting to the D Street side-door "John L. Young" shelter for women" in 2005 and no one responding to my hundreds of letters that we're going to TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION unless someone helps me to explain about the Autism and getting the solar system re-started, till some responsible people are located to be working on this. I'm surrounded visibly and invisibly by profiteers and Neanderthals and others dependent on the wrongful-narcotics from brain serum, these letters and old hidden-camera pornography of me and insult-jokes made into the marathon and nonstop "show" to trick victims to inquiring I guess, as no one is ever interested or reaches me. I don't have any telephony, computer-use or friends. I'm trying to reach Oliver North that it's maybe a violation of his nonprofit-status for his group not to help me as there coon't be any freedom unless I get freed of this bizarre nonstop invisible torture all over me by anyone's, any female's, helping me to write letters till responsible adults are working on fixing the Autism-situation and getting the solar system re-started.

 Many more letters.

My name is Kathy Foshay. Ovary-thieves have invented this world around us and are taking us to TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION off of this gimmick of lifetime-harassing me as how the Revelation-Armageddon threats are being snuck through.

I've been as a "ghost prisoner" walking from the homeless shelter complex to the 9th and G Sts., N.W., MLK Library for nearly 10 years only to find that all my findings are staying ignored. I found a picture of my fraud-parent in the 1969 book on the 1962 "French Connection" narcotics seizure, him posed there as though an officer. The whole thing was a scam, a ritual to bring good luck to the narcotics business and to hide the LSD-business behind the white powder, plus the bags are probably black there to represent cannibalism. Figure #1 has high-functioning Autism-psychopathy descended congenitally since an accident set in Prehistory that had extincted the dinosaurs meant for our normal diet. They use my pleas for help to trick people to Armageddon-traps so all care of yourself take ever just for reading about this, but these Armageddon-bums are always invisibly attacking me from underneath or satellites, etc; and I have no hope of finding any responsible adult anywhere for helping to get this system unravelled and straightened out. I can barely work this new cell phone and its voicemail. Ignore pornography.

My name is Kathy Foshay, here in Washington for 10⁺ years homeless and writing letters to explain that hostage-taking brain-eaters^{AT} with Autism-psychopathy descended from Prehistoric dinosaur-egg smashing days have been stealing ovaries in order to mass-reproduce themselves, infiltrating Washington 221 years ago. They had the global cannibal-system invented by their Christ-slaves, who also invented this life-long LURE-trap of insult-comedy and hidden Covid Cameratype pornography marathon for sneak-effecting the Revelation-Armageddon Plan at the back of the Bibles, bringing on TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION, the Earth left as swirling debris. A wrongful charge of schizophrenia keeps me a ghost prisoner with virtually no response to my thousands of letters and flyers allowed to reach me. The photo is from the real-life 1962 French Connection narcotics scam, really a good-luck ritual to the "LSD"-economy that we're on today. My phony next-of-kin^{} is on the far right and if some safe and brave person could help me library-book research at American University I could show that that's probably Lenny Bruce

I'm staying with a veterans group in Deanwood right now and would like to start a support group for people who'd like to get the schizo-phrenia-label off their records. I'm almost 60 and keep getting struck by phony illnesses, am always unprovably tortured.

*- inaction  It's more complicated than that!

My name is Kathy Foshay. I've never been in Maryland before, if there's any way you could assist me here, and I'm probably the most unfortunate person that's ever lived because I know we're going to TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION and I can never find anyone to help me get the whole universe out of this disaster that we're actually in because of the secret underground. The system says I have schizophrenia and I say the system has Autism-psychopathy, with hallucinogen-dependence from a Prehistoric accident-set, and both terms were invented by Dr. Bleeder around 1908 but I say he was a generational-slave-prisoner trying to get word across that he was locked-in with ax-murderers who "split minds" because they get high on LSD-like brain fluid and his "Autism" was short for Freud's "auto-eroticism" meaning that they masturbate onto disembodied ovaries and mass-reproduce copy-offspring of themselves for sneak-armies by which to take over the world, which is what we're nearing the end of now, and lots of substantiating evidence I've got that their addict-armies won't let anyone speak about with me. That's my fraudulent-parent next-of-Kin on the far right of this 1962 ritual-photo I'd just found in the 1969 book about the "French Connection" drugs-scum, showing I've never had a responsible adult around me, only underground-tricks played.

In the palace he formed his young royal pages—boys of noble birth who were his playmates—into a tiny regiment of 24 boy-soldiers, affectionately known as the “two-dozen” regiment. The number soon increased, and as the boys grew up with the King they were employed as his closest bodyguard. On ceremonial occasions they marched in single file on either side of the King—a privilege enjoyed to this day only by their successors. In 1870 their number rose to be 72. By 1873 the King and most of them had reached the age of 20, and serious recruiting began for young men outside the palace, but only men of good birth and education were admitted. Other officers, besides the King, were appointed, and ranks were for some time designated in English, the King being Colonel. Two companies were formed which soon increased to six, and a lieutenant-colonel was appointed to be in real command who was sometimes, but not always, a prince. The King took the closest interest and visited the regiment in his spare time, but this became more rare after the end of the Regency and the King became his own Prime Minister. Eventually this special regiment was integrated with the Regular Army as the 1st Infantry Regiment of Guards, and was and continues to be the only regiment to wear scarlet for full-dress. When King Chulalongkorn died in 1910, his son and successor added to the name, “King Chulalongkorn’s Own Bodyguard”. The regiment wear that great King’s cypher in his perpetual memory.

After his visits to Malaya and Java King Chulalongkorn told the Regent that, having seen European colonies, he would now like to tour Europe itself. The Regent felt that Europe was still too far at that early part of the reign and India was agreed upon as a compromise. The King left by ship on December 18th, 1871, and he was away for four months when no ladies accompanied him. He was well received by the British Viceroy at Calcutta and thoroughly enjoyed his stay in the sub-continent, which included a visit to Buddha Gaya and other places of interest in the Buddhist Holy Land close to Benares, being the first, and so far the only, King of Siam to have done so.

In 1873 he was 20, considered to have reached his majority, and was given a full coronation ceremony. After he had placed the crown on his own head he proclaimed that from then on

The number soon increased, and as the boys grew up with the King they were employed as his closest bodyguard. On ceremonial occasions they marched in single file on either side of the King—a privilege enjoyed to this day only by their successors. In 1870 their number rose to be 72. By 1873 the King and most of them had reached the age of 20, and serious recruiting began for young men outside the palace, but only men of good birth and education were admitted. Other officers, besides the King, were appointed, and ranks were for some time designated in English, the King being Colonel. Two companies were formed which soon increased to six, and a lieutenant-colonel was appointed to be in real command who was sometimes, but not always, a prince. The King took the closest interest and visited the regiment in his spare time, but this became more rare after the end of the Regency and the King became his own Prime Minister. Eventually this special regiment was integrated with the Regular Army as the 1st Infantry Regiment of Guards, and was and continues to be the only regiment to wear scarlet for full-dress. When King Chulalongkorn died in 1910, his son and successor added to the name, “King Chulalongkorn’s Own Bodyguard”. The regiment wear that great King’s cypher in his perpetual memory.

After his visits to Malaya and Java King Chulalongkorn told the Regent that, having seen European colonies, he would now like to tour Europe itself. The Regent felt that Europe was still too far at that early part of the reign and India was agreed upon as a compromise. The King left by ship on December 18th, 1871, and he was away for four months when no ladies accompanied him. He was well received by the British Viceroy at Calcutta and thoroughly enjoyed his stay in the sub-continent, which included a visit to Buddha Gaya and other places of interest in the Buddhist Holy Land close to Benares, being the first, and so far the only, King of Siam to have done so.

In 1873 he was 20, considered to have reached his majority, and was given a full coronation ceremony. After he had placed the crown on his own head he proclaimed that from then on

Dear Mayor Fosselman,

Kensington could become the town

 unending sadism of Earth's TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION.

The system seems to have some clause that no one's allowed to assist me so lately I'm just asking not to be "railroaded" instead of for letter-writing assistance, which is what is really required for trying to get this world-situation straightened out instead of letting the system
 take us to TPE, TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION.

 1969 "French Connection" book by Robin Moore and am trying to underscore that I've never had a responsibly-behaving adult around my life and have been unawaresedly been mis-used as an underground disappearance-LURE bait-gimmick since probably 1964, and this is how the Biblical Armageddon threat (Rev. 16:16,) is getting pulled off.

Dear KVFD,

I'm homeless and was just moved into a Safe Haven group-home property at 4015 Pliers Mill Road behind you and it's only a short matter of time till an ambulance is phony-called for this phoned-up "COPD" difficulty breathing problem I've got so I'm trying to write to you in hope that some intervention can be gotten to me, for many reasons. I just wrote to Mayor Fosselman that Kensington could become the town that rescued the Universe from the endless sadism of Earth's loss by anyone's working with me a little instead of this obvious set up to medically "railroad" me.

All my life I was raised to be a moron and used toward fulfilling the Armageddon and I've caught on little by little and have written hundreds of letters to people and groups in Washington these past 10 years but my work's been dismissed as being of "schizophrenia" and I'm finally figuring out how the psychiatric industry was rigged to help with the Armageddon-fulfilling but I'm totally ignored and set right behind you in a quiet little house that's going to be like an Amityville-horror to me* as the means of covering-up that lifetime-harassing little me is how the Biblical and the underground global-system have thrived, but they are covering-up too that they're taking the human race and planet Earth to TOTAL PLANETARY EXTINCTION, that there's nothing legitimate about this system with its cars and photography and computers, everything is secret-slavery done to placate the system-making people because they have, what I figure is, as-yet unrecognized Prehistoric-descended Autism-psychopathy with hallucinogen-dependence from an accident-set in Prehistory that could be straightened out and set behind the human race merely by talking about it. But they're disappearing the only person who can explain about it, their slave-system is all doing so.

* 5 AM fire alarm today and frequently.

KVFD could ward-off or prophylactically prevent WWIII by doing anything to work with me a little to keep me from falling ill in this unassuming-seeming little trap house so that I could survive to disseminate all this library-book type information I've been collecting since 2005 or how the system was put together by people with Autism-psychopathy, etc. A little thing like a cot or lounge chair I could use in the backyard would save my life as the trick here is that with this (underground-done) bizarre breathing disorder I was given a bed here in a corner where there's no window or fresh air-circulation so that I've been waking in a deathly-ill condition and this will be ignored till the set up is rigged to call an ambulance because of that same "every-day" torture, to suddenly straight-facedly make a big deal of it that I'm deathly-ill when I'd said all along that I'm too sick to sleep in that area. So with a cot I could rest outside during the day and manage like that for awhile while trying to interest Mayor Fosselman and the Psychology Dept. at American Industry University, excuse me in giving a chance to telling the reality about our global-system. My work was all thrown away by that 2nd + D, NC, homeless shelter while I was phony-hospitalized in 2014 but I've written a bunch of these different descriptive letters again since then and those could be compiled into a book or website, me having stayed away from computers because of the Armageddon LURE's controversiality gimmick, but the situation is so desperate now that I'll try a website, if anyone would help, as my first attempt just vanished into Google. The flyer on the next page is an example hand-out. KathyFosha2@gmail.com

Babies, Babies, Babies

For ten years I was always getting over having a baby, or about to have one. —Eleanor Roosevelt. The Autobiography of Eleanor Roosevelt

Eleanor with baby Anna, 1906

from Nor Eleanor, 2005, Fleming Center

It's a Girl!

IN MAY 1906 twenty-one-year-old Eleanor gave birth to "a beautiful girl . . . 10 pounds and one ounce." Eleanor remembered the first time she held Anna (named for her mother) in her arms—"just a helpless bundle . . . winding itself . . . around my heart."

Eleanor delighted in her newborn and longed to take care of the baby herself. But Sara insisted the children be raised by a series of nurses, nannies, and governesses. This, she declared, was the Roosevelt tradition. Besides, in those days ladies of wealth and social class did not care for their children—such behavior was scandalous. "What she [really] wanted," Eleanor later wrote, "was to hold onto Franklin through his children; she wanted them to grow as she wished." Unable to stand up to her mother-in-law, Eleanor reluctantly yielded.

As her diary entries prove, it didn't take long for her to lose touch with her child. "Anna is upset today so I am told though I have not seen her long enough to judge for myself," she wrote when Anna was only eight months old. "[Nurse] Nelly thinks so, however, so she has gone to bed with a dose of castor oil." Another time, when Anna was a toddler, Nurse Nelly went away for the evening. "I am to take charge of Anna and put her to bed tonight," Eleanor wrote nervously. The next day she recorded with wonder, "I never knew before how easy it is to take care of Anna!"

But when Eleanor did take care of her daughter, she often displayed a poor lack of judgment. Believing fresh air was good for a baby, she once rigged Anna into a wire contraption that she dangled from an upper-story window. Horrified neighbors reported Eleanor to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Another time she tied Anna's thumbs to the palms of her hands so the toddler couldn't suck them.

Not surprisingly, mother and daughter never developed a closeness. "She was very unhappy," admitted Eleanor, "though I did not realize it. . . . She tried to hide her feelings by being rather devil-may-care."

Little Angel

Eleanor holding the first Franklin Jr.

On March 18, 1909, another baby joined the Roosevelt family. Franklin Jr. was "really lovely and very big, 11 lbs." Despite his size, baby Franklin was delicate. He often breathed rapidly, and his skin sometimes took on a blue tinge. But a series of doctors could find nothing wrong with the baby. Worried, Eleanor fussed over his food and schedule, giving the nurses and nannies lots of extra instructions. In October, while Eleanor was visiting New York City, the baby suddenly grew ill. Eleanor raced back to Hyde Park to discover that his "little heart had almost stopped." For the next four days the family watched helplessly as little Franklin fought for air. But on November 1, "the little angel ceased breathing."

Eleanor was devastated. Standing beside his tiny headstone after the funeral, she burst into tears. "How cruel it seemed to leave him out there alone in the cold," she later wrote. She reproached herself for "having done so little about the care of the baby," confessing, "I felt he had been left too much to the nurse, and I knew too little about him, and that in some way I was to blame." This guilt, as well as the grief, remained with Eleanor for the rest of her life.

THE Middle Child

Eleanor with Anna, James, and baby Elliott, 1911

On September 23, 1910, just ten months after Franklin Jr.'s death, Elliott Roosevelt (named for Eleanor's father) came into the world. He weighed a whopping eleven pounds fourteen ounces. If Eleanor worried about this baby's health, her fears were quickly put to rest. Elliott was "a loud, active, excitable boy . . . often temperamental and defiant." Once, after he bit his brother hard, Eleanor spanked him with a slipper. She expected him to cry. But Elliott refused. "He made a long upper lip," she reported to Franklin, "but insisted that it didn't hurt so very much, Mother!" Another time, she claimed, Elliott became so angry "he went for me with both fists!" He bickered constantly with his older siblings, bit, and hit. When Eleanor pleaded with Franklin to help her stop his roughhousing, he replied, "Oh, let him scrap. It's good exercise for him."

Eleanor tried a number of ways to curb Elliott's wildness. She spent time with him on his lessons and read to him. She also had a French governess to help him learn French. "Elliott goes to Mlle. now for French every morning, and I think has learnt a good deal, though if you ask him to say anything he promptly refuses." Eleanor also tried a relaxation method she had learned from her former teacher Mlle. Souvestre. After lunch she had Elliott and the other children lie flat on the floor. "Relax your muscles completely," she softly commanded. When they were physically as well as mentally relaxed, she read to them—poetry, stories, thought-provoking essays. She hoped this method would increase the children's powers of concentration while calming them, but she was never able to tell if it really worked.

Though Elliott's temper and focus were short, he was long on charm. Refusing to attend college, he displayed a restlessness that kept him moving in and out of houses, jobs, and marriages for the rest of his life.

Autism

Leo Kanner (1894–1981), Bruno Bettelheim (1903–1990), Ivar Lovaas (1927–2010)

Andre is four years old, but seldom speaks. When touched by his mother, he turns away and never returns affection. Andre does not make eye contact and appears uncomfortable when others look at him. He has a few behaviors that he repeats over and over. His caregivers have to watch carefully, as he is prone to engage in self-harming behaviors, such as beating his head on the floor.

The above is a fictional case study of a child with autism. In the United States alone, the official government estimate is that one in eighty-eight children suffers from autism or autism spectrum disorder. It is a pervasive developmental disorder, meaning it affects nearly every aspect of a person's life, and it is five times more common among boys than girls. Autism is usually detected by the time a child is two and a half years old, but signs may appear in the first few weeks of life. It is not clear what causes autism.

Leo Kanner, a psychiatrist at Johns Hopkins University, was the first person to describe autism in a landmark 1943 paper. He offered the view that autism was somehow connected to mothers who were not warm and responsive to the child. This idea was picked up by other mental health providers, including the psychoanalyst Bruno Bettelheim. Bettelheim elaborated a theory of autism based on what he called the "refrigerator mother." The term refers to a mother who withholds affection from the child and acts as though she does not want the child to exist. This set of actions leads the child to withdraw into an internal psychological shell in self-defense. Later, behavioral therapists such as Ivar Lovaas demonstrated that behavioral techniques, such as positive reinforcement, could be used to teach autistic children to speak and engage in social interactions. Animal scientist Temple Grandin is an example of a prominent, well-known, and successful person with autism.

In the Brave New World of my fantasy eugenics and dysgenics were practiced systematically. In one set of bottles biologically superior ova, fertilized by biologically superior sperm, were given the best possible prenatal treatment and were finally decanted as Betas, Alphas and even Alpha Pluses. In another, much more numerous set of bottles, biologically inferior ova, fertilized by biologically inferior sperm, were subjected to the Bokanovsky Process (ninety-six identical twins out of a single egg) and treated prenatally with alcohol and other protein poisons. The creatures finally decanted were almost subhuman; but they were capable of performing unskilled work and, when properly conditioned, detensioned by free and frequent access to the opposite sex, constantly distracted by gratuitous entertainment and reinforced in their good behavior patterns by daily doses of soma, would be counted on to give no trouble to their superiors.

"Those who forget the past are condemned to re-live it," is like the motto of the Nazi holocaust.

The system says I have schizophrenia and I say the system has Autism, and both terms were invented by Dr. Eugen Bleuler in 1908, while Dr. Kanner is generally said to be the originating doctor because Dr. Bleuler's work wasn't translated till (about) 1950 and in 1943 it looked like the Nazis were going to win WWII and no one would know the difference about Autism.

The term schizophrenia was coined by Eugen Bleuler, and the term autism.

TYPE OF PSYCHOLOGY: Psychopathology

FIELD OF STUDY: Childhood and adolescent disorders

Aspects of autism, a poorly understood, nonschizophrenic psychosocial disorder, include great social unresponsiveness, speech and language impairment, ritualistic play activity, and resistance to change. The causes of and treatments for autism have not been conclusively determined, although behavior therapy is a promising alternative.

* He looks a lot like V.A. Secretary Bob McDonald, the picture in CRR lobby.

The modern term "autism" was originated by Leo Kanner in the 1940's. In "Autistic Disturbances of Affective Contact" (1943), he described a group of autistic children; he viewed them as much more similar to one another than to schizophrenics, with whom they generally had been associated. Until that time, the classical definition for autism (still seen in some dictionaries) was "a form of childhood schizophrenia characterized by acting out and withdrawal from reality." Kanner believed that these children represented an entirely different clinical psychiatric disorder. He noted four main symptoms associated with the disease: social withdrawal or "extreme autistic aloneness"; either muteness or failure to use spoken language "to convey meaning to others"; an "obsessive desire for maintenance of sameness"; and preoccupation with highly repetitive play habits, producing "severe limitation of spontaneous activity." Kanner also noted that autism—unlike other types of childhood psychoses—began in or near infancy and had both cognitive and affective components.

Over the years, several attempts have been made to establish precise diagnostic criteria for autism. Among the criteria given in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (rev. 4th ed., 2000, DSM-IV-TR) are pervasive lack of responsiveness to other people; gross deficits in language development; if speech is present, peculiar patterns (such as echolalia and pronoun reversals); bizarre reaction to environmental aspects (resistance to change); and the absence of any symptoms of schizophrenia. These criteria are largely a restatement of Kanner's viewpoint.

Dr. Kanner was an Austrian Jew who came here in 1924 and almost all his relatives died in the WWII concentration camps, that I don't think we really have verification of who he was. Please give me a little time to type up the little bit of information I've been able to find out so far.

Eric K. Shinseki leads the Department of Veterans Affairs — for now.

He was, and probably under some orders to do so, putting the label of Autism onto American children first to take away attention from Dr. Bleuler's use of it for his adult patients, but also to cover up for all this unnaturalness of the "disembodied ovaries fertilization system" of growing people, and putting pre-fertilized eggs into unsuspecting women, etc, covering up for how the kids come up strange, as we've been going generation after generation through bizarre traumas.

Mr. Shinseki's picture is there because I figure his type has been generationally-enslaved maybe since the so-called "Trojan War" →.

Humane treatment of people with mental illness gained importance in the late 1700's. This painting shows Philippe Pinel, a French physician of that period, pointing and demanding the removal of chains from inmates of a hospital for people with mental illness in Paris. Through Pinel's efforts, many hospitals introduced more humane treatment programs that included fresh air, exercise, and pleasant surroundings.

In this painting he's really bringing that elderly man to the kitchen to become food and "LSD" from his brain's being available then, and Dr. Pinel is trying to prevent that.

A new thing is that in seeing how Dr. Kanner lifted the word Autism and applied it to American children by trying to find out who'd started the turning the word schizophrenia against Americans; and psychiatrist Kurt Schneider (1887-1967) seems to have started the voices, be of generational-slave King Priam's type, but also maybe be connected to Lenny Bruce.

Hand-copy, used a sheet & the Iron-Contrapt.

Dr. Sutter, I've written you many more pages, as I'm always looking for responsible adult assistance to help take all of this end-of-the-world real-life problem to other responsibly-behaving adults, and the pages here have gotten a little mixed-up as time's gone by, like where Dr. "Leo" Kanner's full name was really Chastel Leib Kanner, who'd lost most of his family to the Nazi holocaust, and details like that, hoping you'll bear with me because I'm all alone with everything.

I'd wanted to see you to get a blood-gas lab test done but I've become leery of medical people and hope I didn't completely miss my chance to see who I've been addressing these long letters to and if you'd be interested in reading them. We could end the whole world's drug problem, rescue the human race and re-gain eternity for them, sparing the universe the sadism of Earth's unnecessarily's being turned to swirling rubble.

Sincerely,
 Kelly Foshay
