

xiii. Pallas expelling the Vices. Paris, Louvre (Cat. no. 40)

This old Andreas Mantegna Louvre painting has got this same "Mister Teresa"-type in the corner, with breasts and hair to waist, as an example. I think his headband reads "Arrogancia," and his friends' Ingratitude + Ignorance, (Arrogance)

They're running from a typical fire started off by the pyromania that comes with this "Prehistoric-descended Autism-psychoopathy" with brain-eating dependence. Mantegna's "Parnassos" and others are evidence.