

(From 1 of the letters I've been writing)

Chaiyo!

KING VAJIRAVUDH AND THE DEVELOPMENT OF THAI NATIONALISM

That "Chaiyo!" was Rama IV, Vajiravudh's war-cry in the early 20th-century and it was an exclamation used on the 1960s' Johnny Carson Show, most of which episodes I'd seen in my sabotaged-for-this-Armageddon childhood.

Walter F. Vella

ASSISTED BY

Dorothy B. Vella

Published with the support of The Maurice J. Sullivan & Family Fund in The University of Hawaii Foundation

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS

This is the only book I've been able to find on this phonied-up King so far. If anyone could assist me I'd easily be able to check on and then find out whatever the Library of Congress might have. His father was the famous Chulalongkorn, from these generational-slaves descended from artist Peter Paul Rubens.

King Vajiravudh in Ceremonial Dress for the Declaration of War (Statue at Vajiravudh College).

(I can only "collage" previous letter-pages right now.)